

THE FIFTIETH ANNIVERSARY

A Half Century Ago Today The Battle of Pittsburg Landing Began.

FIERCE STRUGGLE RECALLED

By Seymour Men Who Were There. Thousands of Soldiers Were Killed.

Some old soldiers of Seymour are recalling that a half century ago today they with thousands of other men were engaged in one of the bloody battles of the Civil war, Pittsburg Landing.

Among these veterans was Rev. T. C. Smith, who was in the hospital service as a surgeon and he gives the following account of the struggle:

Fifty years ago today the battle of Pittsburg Landing, one of the greatest of the war, was fiercely fought. The Shiloh church that was on the battle field, also gave a name to this dreadful, bloody conflict. At daylight General Johnson, commanding the Confederate forces, violently attacked the union army. Most of the first day of battle, the union forces were held at a great disadvantage, and were driven from their first battle lines. But as the day advanced the Confederates found themselves being repeatedly repulsed at the most vital points of their lines and of our lines. At a late hour in the day the lines on both sides were broken and some serious confusion could be observed, but at that time the advantage was very greatly with the Confederates. At that hour Gen. Johnson, the Confederate commander, was about to press his advantages. Had he lived to do so the Union army would probably have lost all. Just at that critical moment Johnson was fatally wounded, dying in a few minutes thereafter. Gen. Bauregard, next in command, took charge of the conflict. In taking time to get hold of his army and to reform his lines, he lost what seemed to be his opportunity for gaining a tremendous victory. The interval he thus gave, also gave time to reform the Union lines, and time for 20,000 of the fresh troops from General Buell's army to reach the field and meet the next onset of the Confederates, to repulse them and then to charge and drive them in a stubborn retreat toward Corinth. That won the battle for the Union army. It also gave time for the gun boats to come up the Tennessee river and effectually shell the Confederates' right wing and thus to cripple their lines at that most essential point in their plan of battle. They intended to drive their right wing through our left at that point. The second day of the battle we held our ground and then drove them back and the battle was ours. Grant and Sherman were in command of our troops. Officers of less ability and of less stubbornness, would have been defeated the first day, and the whole Union army would have been lost. The Union soldiers showed a bravery and stubbornness of resistance that was not surpassed in any conflict of the war. On the issue of that battle, far more depended for the future, than we are usually wont to think, until we have fully considered the situation. The dreadful-ness of the carnage and fierceness of the battle may be judged when we realize that nearly 23,000 men were killed or wounded, most of them the first day of the battle; more than three as many men, women and children as reside in Seymour.

Very few people realize just what a horse power, as expressed in engineering terms, really means.

When it is stated that the world's largest Curtis steam turbine, which drives an electric generator in the Waterside Station, New York, develops 30,000 horse power the meaning is vague and incomprehensible. Imagine this term reduced to man power and almost everyone can grasp its full meaning. If it takes twelve men to equal one horse power then this mammoth turbine engine develops 12x30,000 or the working energy of 360,000 men. If these men worked in eight hour shifts each day it would require the services of 1,080,000 men every twenty-four hours to produce the working energy of this single turbine unit.

COST OF OPERATION

Of Registration Law Will Be Heard In Jackson County.

The voters of Jackson county will expect to vote next fall will be obliged to register this year under the new law and will have the opportunity of doing this May 9 and at two later dates.

The more consideration is given to the law and the more the cost of its operation is considered the more criticism there is in many sections against the law. Those who are vigorous in the criticism say that the law may be good one for cities where there is large floating population but that rural communities such as Jackson county it is a needless expense.

Few persons have figured on the cost of the operation of the law in this county. The law provides for board for each precinct in the county and each board will consist of three members. Each member will receive $4 per year for his services. This would be $36 per precinct for three sessions of one day each, a total of $1224. The law provides that in May a board may hold three days if five persons in a precinct petition for it. Should each of the precinct boards hold three days there would be an additional expense of over $800. The 34 inspectors will be allowed at least one day, possibly more, for going after supplies and returning them. For three sessions if only one day is allowed, the cost of this service will be over $400. Then there will be the cost of records and various kinds of supplies which will be considerable and the rent paid for polling places in the precincts will be a heavy item of cost.

Altogether it can be seen that the cost of the registration law for the taxpayers of Jackson county will be a large sum. In such counties as this there are few illegal votes cast as most of the voters are well known in cities in the congested sections and tenement house districts the law may be useful.

Heart to Heart
Talks.

By EDWIN A. NYE.

YOU!

Has it ever struck you that there is a mysterious individual going around, walking the streets, chatting, laughing, grumbling, arguing, and that all your friends know him and have long since added him up and come to a definite conclusion about him without saying more than a chance, cautious word to you, and that person is you?—Arnold Bennett.

You!

Do you know him or her?

And would you not give a great deal to be able to meet yourself as you meet other people and see yourself as they see you?

"O wad some power the giftie gie us," said Burns, "to see oursel's as others see us!"

We cannot meet ourselves face to face as we meet others. The mirror shows only the outside of us. But we have or may acquire the mental ability to meet and study our real selves and get acquainted.

You!

Are you what people think you are, or better than you think, or worse?

Do you ever step to one side, as it were, and watch yourself go by?

We try to find out from others what they think of us, but they will not tell us. In fact, they will take pains sometimes to deceive us as to what they think of us.

Why should you not take the invoice yourself?

Why not make the inventory at first hand and add up the figures just as they are? Why not credit yourself up with all the good qualities you know you are possessed of and charge yourself up with your weaknesses and faults and failings?

You know better than any one, if you will take time to think, what are your strong points and your weak ones.

If you make the inventory do not deceive yourself or leave out any of the qualities, good, bad or indifferent. Self-deception is the worst sort of deception.

One thing is sure:

When you are done and have made the footings you will think less of yourself and more of others. Their faults will dwindle to their proper size and yours will appear as big as they really are.

You!

Do you know yourself?

If not get an introduction.

TREES ALONG ROAD

Bulletin By Forestry Board Concerning Highway Ornamentation.

C. C. Deam, secretary of the state board of forestry, has issued a bulletin which promises to provoke considerable adverse comment among the farmers of the state. The bulletin calls on the farmers to plant trees along the roadsides, arguing that such trees would enhance the beauty and value of the farms, afford resting places for birds and protect the crops from adverse winds.

One of the things the land owners of the state have been doing in the last twenty years is to remove large trees from fences along the edges of the fields, and thousands of beautiful trees along roadsides were felled. As the Indiana farm land increases in value from $25 and $40 an acre to $100 and $200 an acre, the area sapped by the roots of large trees along fences became an item of economic importance. A dozen large trees along the roadside would, it was found, destroy the crop efficiency of from two to three acres of land in the adjoining field, and the trees fell victims to high land values.

Mr. Deam will point out that the small growing trees along the roadside will not interfere with crops in the fields, but will add to the beauty and value of the adjoining farm. If the trees become so large as to interfere with crops, they can be removed, he shows, and others planted.

AFTER FIVE YEARS

Stranger Wanted To Return Wrong Change Received at Dreamland.

Charles Williams, who conducts the Dreamland theatre, had a big surprise Friday evening and one which gave him such a shock that he was faint and nervous during the remainder of the evening. About 8 o'clock a stranger walked up to the window and enquired for the manager. When Mr. Williams responded the stranger stated that five years ago in making change he was given twenty-five cents too much money at the theatre and he desired to make restitution. The stranger declined to give his name, the only information offered regarding himself being that he lives fifteen miles south of Seymour. He had evidently been hit by some kind of moral wave but would not say what influence had been working on him. Williams had read of such incidents and now that a personal experience had come to convince him that such things really happen outside of fiction, a peculiar influence seemed to be exerted over him. He also seemed to be struck by the reform wave and declined to take the money, acknowledging that it did not belong to him as he did not own the theatre at the time the wrong change was given.

It Wins.

The subject is frequently discussed as to whether a big advertising splurge at intervals, or a smaller advertisement inserted regularly, will produce the most effect.

All our experience tends to the belief that there is nothing to compare with regularity in placing your business news before the people.

Our modern life is so full of interests and most people live in so hurried a way that public attention is fickle. The big ad makes a splendid appearance, but the constant dropping wears away the stone sooner than the occasional hard shower.

Psychology teaches that nothing affects the human mind like repetition. If a man of very striking appearance passed by your place of business only at long intervals, you would scarcely recollect him from time to time. If a person of very ordinary appearance goes to your place every day regularly for a little time his face becomes firmly fixed in your mind. The merchant who will advertise regularly, even if only in a small space, but each time giving some real news about his offerings, you will be surprised to see how the public will look for him in his regular space, and be disappointed if he fails to appear.

Leaves for Washington.

Joe Swope left this afternoon for Washington, D. C. where he will attend the Army and Navy Training School in preparation for examination for entrance to West Point. He was recommended for appointment to the Military Academy a short time ago by Congressman Dixon. He will probably try the June examination at West Point.

May Give Play at Seymour.

The junior class has been asked to give their play "Mr. Bob" at the Majestic theater in Seymour, under the auspices of the senior class of Seymour high school.—Crothersville Herald.

Constipation brings many ailments in its train and is the primary cause of much sickness. Keep your bowels regular, madam, and you will escape many of the ailments to which women are subject. Constipation is a very simple little thing, but like many simple things, it may lead to serious consequences. Nature often needs a little assistance and when Chamberlain's Tablets are given at the first indication, much distress and suffering may be avoided. Sold by all dealers.

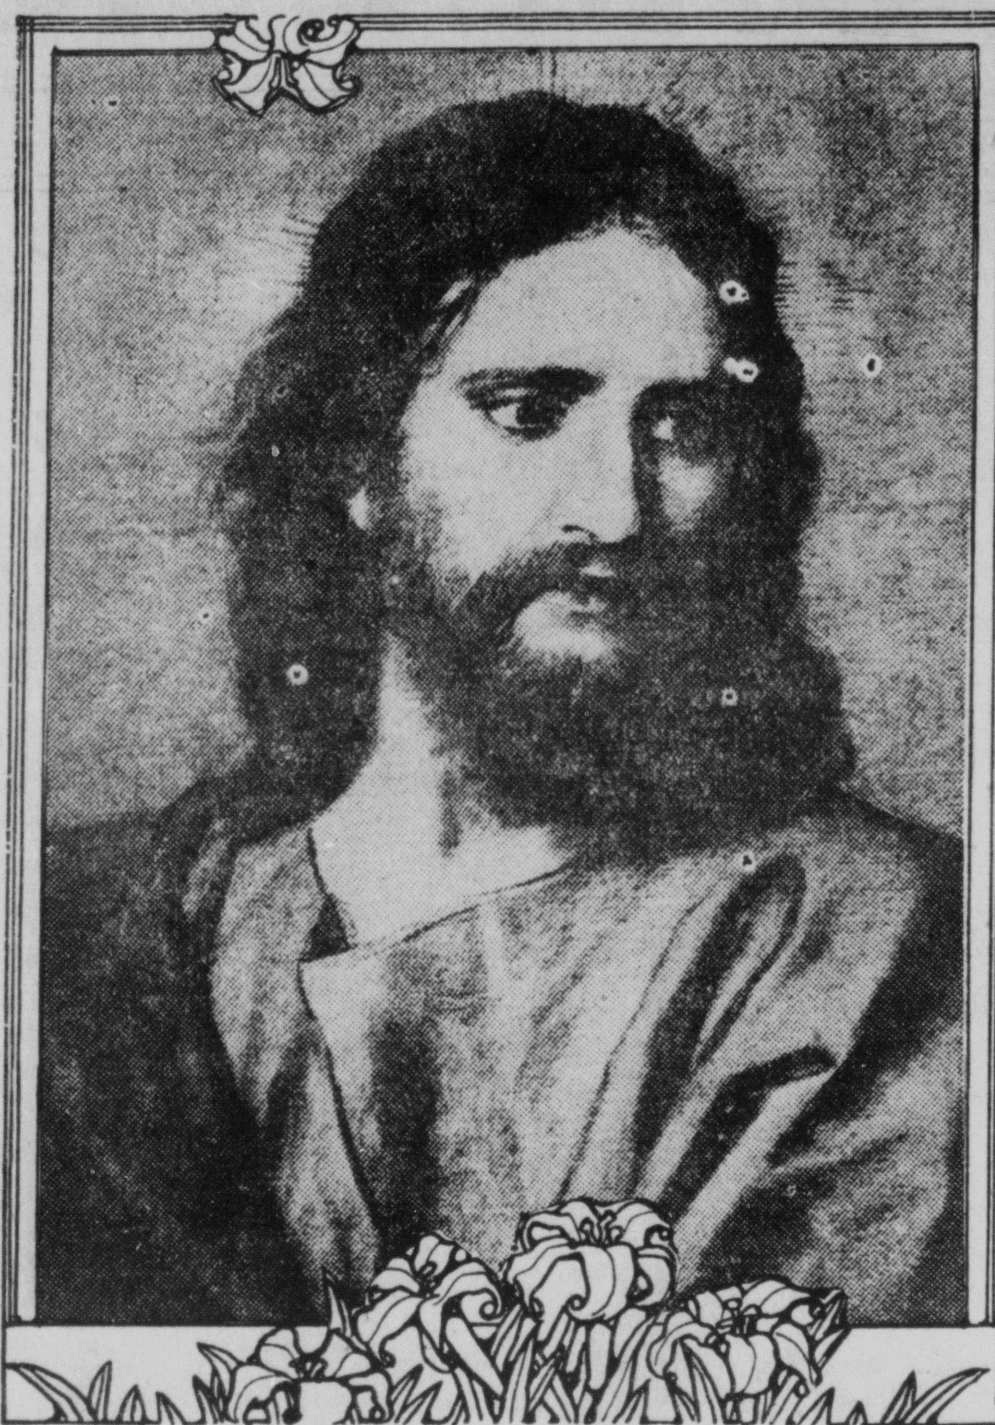

Zachariah Price, the Jennings county farmer who several months ago killed a tenant on his farm near Butlerville, will be placed on trial at Greensburg next week. He has numerous acquaintances in Seymour. Though Price has during his life been used to outdoors activity, he is standing his confinement well and has gained several pounds in weight. The Greensburg Times says: Friday morning Mrs. Price and her daughter were visitors at the jail. They live at Butlerville. Two brothers, Fred Price of Jennings county, and William Price of Rushville, also were callers.

Price's wife and daughter are frequent callers at the jail. They never fail to bring the prisoner some dainty article of diet. Relatives of Price and his friends and neighbors evidently are not going to desert him.

RESURRECTION MORN

By NEIL MACDONALD

Copyright, 1912, by American Press Association

THE Mount which shook with horror at the sight
On Calvary's cross had since resumed repose.
And on the brow of Olivet the light
Replaced night's shadings with the hue of rose.

Bright plumaged minstrels flitted through the air
And chanted matins to the day new born.
The hills and valleys and the city fair
Gleamed in the beauty of the early morn.

Around the tomb where Christ had vanquished death
Anemone and crocus bloom enhanced the view.
And life, awakened by the spring's warm breath,
Had draped the scene with Eden's charm and hue.

But one there was whom love had early led
To where they laid him in the rocky tomb.
The glow and beauty all around her spread,
But added sorrow to her pain and gloom.

Last at the cross and first to reach the grave
And greet her risen Lord, but she alone
Of those who knew his power to save
Had come to ponder and her loss bemoan.

I SAW her once—repentant Magdalene—
As Titian's art portrayed her to the gaze,
Her face so beautiful, uplift by sheen
Of golden tints from the sun's first rays.

She knelt before the risen Christ, her face,
Rapt, pure and passionless, to his upturned
In love and worship, which removed all trace
Of what she suffered when he was injured.

He stood before her, with his brow thorn-scarred,
And smiled upon her as she humbly knelt,
But with restraining words and gesture barred
The full expression of the joy she felt.

To her alone the privilege was given
To see him first, the joyous tidings bring
To his grieved brethren that he had arisen,
Which changed their dolor to the songs of spring.

Through all the years since that first Easter morn
A brighter hope has cheered the human soul,
And death no longer marks our farthest bourn
Since Christ arose and passed from its control.

BIBLE KNOWLEDGE

Test Among Frankfort High School Students Show Ignorance.

Who was the man of Uz?

Not a single student in the Frankfort high school knew. How many in the Seymour schools, or Sunday school pupils know?

There were 95 students in the Frankfort high school who did not know the name of a single book of the Bible. Only five knew that Peter was the apostle to the Gentiles, and but two students were aware of the fact that the first five books of the Bible are known as the Pentateuch.

Many amusing as well as interesting replies were received as a result of the short quiz on the Bible, recently conducted in the high school by Superintendent Pittinger. Among the answers received to the question, "Name five books of the old testament," were included such ventures as "pentacost," "Isaac," "Jacob," "John," and others. One student suggested that one of the books of the new testament might be the book of Luther. Another claimed there was a book called Bartholomew, while a third was of the opinion that "The Apostles" was the title of a book. Others suggested Esther, Ruth, Paul Simon and Jacob.

A typical guess was that of the student who wrote that Goliath was the beloved apostle. Another said Christ was the beloved, while others named Moses and Peter. Of a total of 296 papers received from high school students, 90 knew that John was the beloved disciple. One hundred and one rightly named Solomon as the wisest man, and 145 were right in declaring Samson the strongest character named in the Bible. That Cain was the first murderer was answered by 143.

"What event is recalled by Cana?" was one of the most difficult questions. The majority of those answering confused the name with "the land of Canaan" while only seven of the 296 knew the story of the marriage feast of Cana, where Christ turned the water into wine. Ninety-nine knew something about Esther, while but 55 were familiar with the tale of the wicked queen, Jezebel. One hundred and fourteen told of Saul of Tarsus, or King Saul, and 109 knew that Sinai was a mountain of some kind. A number were of the opinion that Sinai was the place where the crucifixion took place, and others said it was where Moses died. A few knew that Sinai was the mountain on which Moses received the tables of the law.

Twenty-nine students knew the story of Jonah's gourd, which grew up in the night to be withered by the sun. One hundred and eighteen were familiar with the reference "stand stiff as Lot's wife," and 73 knew the allusion "where Lazarus left the charnel den," referred to the bringing to life of Lazarus by Christ. "Or memorize another Golgotha, referring to Mount Calvary, was answered correctly by 29.

"The object of the test was to see what knowledge of the Bible is possessed by high school students," said Supt. Pittinger in speaking of the test today. "Many high school students are not attendants at Sunday school and have a very diminutive knowledge of the book."

Incidentally the "Man of Uz" was Job, who was a native of Uz.

MORE LEVEES AT BREAKING POINT

Hope Abandoned in Many Sections of Flood District.

MEMPHIS FACES INUNDATION

Waters Even Now Are Lapping the Top of the Dike and a Phenomenal Rise in Upper Courses of River Indicate That the Worst Is Yet to Come—"Pocket" Farmers Looking for the Greatest Flood Since That of 1875.

St. Louis, April 6.—For the flood-doomed sections of the lower Mississippi valley there is no relief in sight. All indications are that the water will go higher and that the present damage will be but a detail to what is to follow. These indications are based on reports of phenomenal rises at points above the confluence of the Mississippi and Ohio rivers and weather bureau predictions. A high wind caused the breaking of the government levee six miles below Hickman, Ky. Hickman itself is partly submerged and a majority of its citizens are refugees in nearby towns. The break left hundreds of thousands of dollars damage in its wake. No lives were lost as far as can be ascertained.

Memphis has given up hope, and the city is considered doomed. The waters are within a few inches of the flood stage of forty-five feet, which is the utmost limit at which the levees protecting the city can hold, and are still rising.

The Mississippi is eight miles wide at Quincy. At Evansville the Ohio will reach forty-four feet by Sunday. Farmers living in the bottoms between there and Paducah report great loss of stock. Thousands of acres of growing wheat will be ruined along the lower Ohio and Wabash rivers. White river farmers say they are looking for the worst flood since the great flood of 1875.

Governor Donaghey of Arkansas has sent the adjutant general of the state to the flooded districts to take charge of troops which are working on the levees and rescuing families from the lowlands. Arkansas levees are at the breaking point and a few inches rise will precipitate torrents of water into the lowlands. The entire town of Wyatt, Mo., is under three feet of water. At Cairo the river is rising at the rate of two inches a day. A message from Union City, Tenn., says that the government levee at that place went out and water is now pouring into the Reelfoot lake district, which will flood a territory forty-five to fifty miles long by five to thirty miles wide. A report is current here that there has been considerable loss of life in Mississippi county.

Five Victims of Flood.

Cairo, Ill., April 6.—William Lynn, wife and three children were drowned in the flood. Lynn was a farmer and was overtaken, with his family, by the rising water.

Lost Life in Flood.

Glasgow, Ky., April 6.—While boating on the Cumberland river to get a view of the flood scenes, Miss Allen Alexander was drowned.

DE PAUW'S PRESIDENT IS URGED FOR BISHOP

An Honor That Indiana Friends Deem Due.

Greencastle, Ind., April 5.—As the time for the meeting of the general conference of the Methodist Episcopal church draws near the name of Dr. Francis J. McConnell, president of De Pauw university, is prominently mentioned in connection with a bishopric. There has been a feeling among the Methodists of Indiana for many months that he would be a fitting man to fill one of the vacant bishoprics. Not only the Indiana Methodists, but Methodists throughout the country who have become acquainted with Dr. McConnell since his election to the presidency of De Pauw are mentioning him in connection with the election. Greencastle and De Pauw university people have about reconciled themselves to the belief that he will be honored by the general conference.

Dr. McConnell himself has made no statement regarding the matter. Personally he is not seeking the election, but it is believed his many friends recognize his ability, and will leave nothing undone toward his election as bishop this year.

REBELS TAKE PARRALL

Conclusion of One of Fiercest Engagements of Present Revolution.

Parrall, Chihuahua, April 6.—When the commands of Generals Salazar and Fernandez raised the rebel flag of the Liberal cause and took formal possession of the city, Parrall fell into the hands of the Mexican rebels, after Pancho Villa's command had slipped out of the city, leaving many dead and wounded and a badly battered town. The rebels in their fighting used their heavy guns to good effect and besides killing and wounding many of the federal defenders, did much damage to the town. In leaving the federalists were forced to abandon a machine gun and the howitzer captured from Campa's rebels when they were repulsed this week.

TROUBLE BREWING

Miners and Operators Losing Friendly Feeling For Each Other.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., April 6.—Efforts on the part of United Mine Workers to interfere with the repair work of the operators at their collieries will result in the companies calling upon the sheriff for protection, and if this official fails to give the protection needed, Governor Tener will be appealed to. This statement was made by one of the big operators here, and it is taken to mean that the companies will now attempt to show their hand. The miners declare that the threats of the companies are not scaring them in the least, and that they will resist stubbornly any effort to do more than necessary repair work.

NOW UP TO THE FEDERAL COURT

Railway Commission's Order Held Back Ten Days.

AFFECTS EXPRESS COMPANIES

The Order For Reduction of Express Rates in This State Is Held in Abeyance Pending the Action of the Federal Court on the Application of the Companies For an Order Restraining Railroad Commission.

Indianapolis, April 6.—The date for the recently ordered express rates to become effective has been advanced by the state railroad commission to April 15. When the original order of reduction was received by the companies, they appealed from the decision of the commission to the United States court, where the case now is. It is understood to be the plan of the commission to extend the time by a series of ten-day and fifteen-day extensions, until the federal court has disposed of the question of whether a temporary restraining order shall issue against the commission, as asked by the companies. It is expected by attorneys for the express companies and the commission that the case will come before Judge Anderson of the federal court, before April 15, and arguments will be heard on the question of a restraining order, pending final disposition of the case.

The original order was issued in February, to be effective March 15. When notice was received that the case had been taken to the federal court, an extension of time was granted until April 5. When it was found the case could not be heard in the meantime, the further extension was granted. The schedule of rates ordered by the commission would mean a reduction of approximately 15 per cent in the gross earnings of the companies on business wholly within the state.

JOBS AT STAKE

Indianapolis Police Barred From Receiving Saloon Favors.

Indianapolis, April 6.—A rule prohibiting policemen from accepting cigars, drinks or food in saloons, was adopted by the board of public safety at a conference held by the board with Mayor Shank and Superintendent of Police Hyland.

"The first policeman that is found guilty of violating that rule is going to lose his job," said the mayor, in explaining the rule.

ECONOMY MEASURE

Carmel, Ind., April 6.—A petition signed by 300 voters of this part of Hamilton county will be presented to the county commissioners, asking that Clay, Delaware and Fall Creek townships be made into two, with White river as the dividing line. The change will mean the elimination of one trustee and one assessor, thus saving the county the salaries of two men.

CLIMAX OF STRUGGLE OVER BRITISH MINES

Miners' Federation Faces the Crucial Test Today.

London, April 6.—This afternoon a momentous meeting of the miners' federation is being held in London. It involves more than the question of indorsing the executive committee's recommendation that the miners return to work pending a settlement of the minimum wage by the district boards, for which it was convened. It will mark the climax of a struggle within the federation itself.

The effects produced on the miners in the various coal fields of the executive board's resolutions are widely different. Meetings of miners in Yorkshire, Durham, Northumberland and East Scotland showed bitter feeling against the executive board and complete disapproval of its resolution in favor of returning to work under the terms of the minimum wage bill. The idea that a two-thirds majority was necessary to prolong the strike was scouted; the majority shown by the ballot was held to be ample to justify its continuance.

The delegates who are representing the districts at the federation meeting today greatly outnumber those who favor a resumption of work, the proportion being 44 to 190. Therefore if a straight vote is taken the result is obvious and there is undoubtedly a possibility of the executive's resolution being overridden.

FORCED ANARCHISTS TO KISS THE FLAG

Californians Don't Take Kindly to These Fellows.

San Diego, Cal., April 6.—Deputy constables and a large body of armed citizens of San Diego forced nearly one hundred Industrial Workers of the World, all of whom admitted they were anarchists, to kneel on the ground and kiss the folds of an American flag.

The men who were thus forced to show respect to the national emblem composed the party that left Santa Ana on a freight train and whose coming was awaited by the deputies and armed citizens, who had gone out in automobiles to meet them and drive them back.

The Industrial Workers were stopped at San Onofre and detained there. After the flag kissing the Industrial Workers were divided into squads of five and placed in the command of details of deputies. Then the march to the line was started and the procession moved to the tune of "The Star Spangled Banner," in which the Industrial Workers were compelled to make at least a show of joining. At the Orange county line the men who had come from Santa Ana were given a parting caution to keep out of San Diego county. They started north on the railway track.

OFFER TO SELL ALASKAN ROAD

The Guggenheims Desire to Unload On Uncle Sam.

THEY TAKE IT UP WITH TAFT

When Daniel and Simon Called on the President at the White House It Is Understood They Indicated a Ready Willingness to Have the Government Take Over Their Copper and Coal Road at Actual Cost to Them.

Washington, April 6.—Apparently as a result of the administration's recommendation that the federal government undertake the construction of a railroad opening up the Alaska coal fields and the interior of the great country, the Guggenheims have offered to sell the Copper River & Northwestern railroad in Alaska to the United States government. The willingness evinced by the Guggenheims to part with this property marks the end of any efforts that may have been put forth to monopolize the great coal deposits of Alaska. The Morgan-Guggenheim interests hope now to persuade the United States government to take over the line and use it as a link in the road proposed by the Taft administration.

A conference was held at the White House on this subject. The Guggenheims were represented by two of the brothers, Daniel and Simon, the United States senator from Colorado. Secretary of the Interior Fisher and President Taft participated in the conference and Vice President Sherman called to present Daniel Guggenheim to the president.

While the meeting did not develop a flat offer from the Guggenheims, they made it apparent they would be glad to have the government take over the road at the actual cost to them. It is estimated that the Guggenheims have put about $20,000,000 into the railroad, which runs from the port of Cordova back 197 miles to the great bonanza copper mine controlled by the Guggenheim interests. The original purpose in building the road was to open up this copper mine, but the Guggenheims counted on much additional tonnage from the opening up of the Alaska coal fields. Their plan was to build a spur of this road about fifty miles long into the Behring coal fields. These are the fields in which are located the so-called Cunningham claims that led to the scandal in Secretary Ballinger's administration of the interior department. The Guggenheims themselves had an option on these claims, and it had been contended by opponents of the Taft administration that the Guggenheims had intended right along to obtain a monopoly on the Alaska coal fields.

The turning down by Secretary of the Interior Fisher of the Cunningham claims and the action of the department in regard to the so-called Ryan harbor rights on Controller bay were, the Taft enemies have charged, hard blows to the Morgan-Guggenheim interests.

HOLY WEEK

The Ending of Lent. Special Services at St. Ambrose Church.

Today marks the ending of Lent. This week has been observed by the Catholics as Holy Week and special services have been held since Thursday at St. Ambrose church. On Green Thursday the beginning of Christ's sufferings were commemorated in the services. Yesterday was Good Friday and the crucifixion was commemorated; at 8:00 a. m. was the Passion mass and during the remainder of the day the services of the exposition of the Cross were largely attended, the members going to the church to adore and to thank God for delivering mankind. In the evening came the service of the Stations of the Cross, commemorating the fourteen stations beginning with the betrayal of Christ and ending with the laying of the body in the sepulchre.

This is Holy Saturday on which day all of the sacraments are blessed. Tomorrow there will be Easter mass and the services will commemorate the resurrection. The church will be specially decorated and there will be special music.

Frozen Gas.

Only those who have had sufficient experience with gas during severe winter weather know for a certainty that gas will freeze.

While it seems absurd to argue that gas is effected by frost such is indeed the case and during a single week in the city of Chicago the gas companies received nearly 50,000 calls to thaw out frozen gas pipes which necessitated the employing of 600 extra men.

Extreme cold causes the vapor in the pipes to freeze, thus impeding the flow of gas. All through the northern country during the past winter gas pipes were frozen, causing great inconvenience to families depending entirely upon gas for cooking purposes. In exact opposition to this is the fact that users of electricity are not hampered by cold weather. In fact, they actually have better service at low temperatures owing to the superior insulation then afforded.

WOULD NOT DEFEND PHILIPPINE ISLANDS

In Case of War, Let 'Em Go, Says Edwards.

Washington, April 6.—"I am not at all concerned about the military aspect of the situation," said General Clarence R. Edwards, chief of the bureau of insular affairs, to the senate finance committee. "What I desire to present is the commercial phase of the Philippines. If any of the great powers, such as Germany or Russia, should decide to seize the Philippines, I would allow them to do so, but the ownership of the islands would be one of the things to be considered after the close of the war."

"You mean we would not defend them?" asked Senator McCumber.

"No," answered the general. "The important points to be given attention in a Pacific war would be Pearl Harbor in the Hawaiian Islands, San Francisco and Alaska."

"You mean it would not be wise to concentrate great war strength so far away as the Philippines, but to let them go and to recover them in the treaty of peace, if we won?" suggested Senator John Sharp Williams.

"Yes, that is what would happen," answered General Edwards.

"The Philippines are the most fertile islands in the world," he continued. "They could produce enough sugar to supply the United States, but the production is small because of restrictions imposed by this country." He urged that the United States should be more liberal in granting sugar-making privileges in the Philippines and in the rates of duty assessed upon products of the islands.

Reo the Fifth—$1055

"The Car that Marks My Limit"

R. E. OLDS, Designer

A Few Facts from Mr. R. E. Olds, World's Famous Designer, about "Reo the Fifth"

You will find in this car quite a number of features found in no other car. You will find style and finish, and an impressive appearance which is rare even in the highest priced cars. I have given my earnest attention to the world of detail in connection with the equipment and finish of REO THE FIFTH and the result will please the most exacting. Fastidious, describes it in a word.

In a measure many of the features of the earlier model have been retained; but improved, strengthened and refined where experience has taught us the existence of a weakness. Many features have been entirely discarded—not because they were worthless but because in some respect they could be questioned. These have been replaced with designs of mechanical perfectness.

MOTOR—I am justly proud of my motor. Greater power than it develops is unnecessary. Its operation is inexpensive. It is the standard type and power of the motor of the future, and I believe the time is far off when the one I offer will be improved upon.

Comparing it with last year's motor, the fly wheel is found two inches farther back, which tends to reduce vibration; considerably more power is delivered at low speeds and it is absolutely impossible to make it pound, regardless of the position of the spark and throttle levers.

The valve mechanism has been quieted; wearing surfaces improved and a device for the elimination of noise caused by the timing gears has been added. This device is effective and positive.

CENTER CONTROL—The most conspicuous of the new features of this new car is the center cane handle control, for the operation of the transmission gears. This does all the gear shifting through a very slight motion. A radius of three inches covers the movements of the lever handle in shifting from neutral to any other gear. No one can realize the full value of this convenience without experiencing it. A gear shifting lever and emergency brake placed at the side of the car are always in the way. Both are eliminated in REO THE FIFTH. Both brakes are now operated by the feet. Try and realize what this means to the driver. Entrance and egress is possible from either side of the car without interference.

A BEAUTIFUL CAR.

If I sighted at all it would be in the finish. To you that is merely a matter of pride.

But here, too, you will find the last touch of perfection. The body has 17 coats. The upholstery is deep, and of genuine leather. The filling is hair. The lamps are enameled. Even the engine is nickel trimmed.

INITIAL PRICE, $1,055.

This car for the present is sold at $1,055, but this price is not guaranteed. This price is based on present cost of materials—the lowest they have been in years.

HER EASTER BONNET.

By CLARISSA MACKIE.

[Copyright, 1912, by American Press Association.]

ELECTA SCOTT was saying her prayers in her customary audible manner. That is why Amabel Deering happened to overhear them as she knocked at Electa's side door at 7 o'clock in the morning. "Lord," Electa was saying plaintively, "for five years I've asked you for a new bonnet to wear to church and up to now I ain't had no shadow of an answer. How am I going to church on Sundays if I don't have a new bonnet, and how can I buy a new bonnet when it takes every cent of that pension money to buy bread and butter and contribute to the missionary society? Lord, don't you reckon I need a new bonnet more than them heathen needs flannel petticoats? Lord, I still have faith. I believe I shall have that Easter bonnet this year. Amen!"

When Electa opened the door to Amabel's repeated knocking her face still wore the exalted look of one who had just withdrawn from spiritual communion.

"Good morning, Amabel," she said dreamily. "You come after your yeast?" "Yes, Miss Electa," returned pretty Amabel, extending her pitcher. "Isn't it a beautiful morning?"

"It's a pretty day," murmured Electa, retiring into her pantry with the pitcher. Her yeast was famous throughout the village, and the sale of it, together with the $100 annual income which she called her "pension," provided her table. She owned the cottage.

"Mother's making doughnuts today, and she says she will send some over," said Amabel as she went out.

"That's kind of her, Amabel, but she needn't send them. I'll get them when I come to the missionary meeting. It's going to be to your house today, ain't it?"

"Yes, and I must hurry, for I promised to make a cake for refreshments," and Amabel hurried away.

Amabel Deering was something of a gossip, but never an unkindly one, for she possessed a warm heart and an unselfish disposition. Of course she told her mother about Electa's prayer for a new bonnet.

"It's too bad she can't have one, mother," declared Amabel as they worked together in the kitchen of the Deering home. "That old horsehair thing she's been wearing for years is nothing fit to wear now!"

"It's a sight, but what can any one do with Electa? She's as poor as a church mouse and as proud as Lucifer. I expect she'd be mad as a hatter if she knew you'd overheard her praying for a bonnet."

"I don't know as it's any more foolish to pray for a bonnet than it is to ask for a good crop of corn or for renewed health or for happiness," said Amabel, bending eggs briskly. "If an Easter bonnet means happiness for Electa Scott she ought to have it!"

"How is she going to get it?" asked Mrs. Deering.

"Why, can't the missionary society send her one? She's contributed enough to the heathen out of her little income. I should think. Why don't you put it up to the other ladies, mother?"

"I don't believe they'd do it, Amabel."

THIS WOMAN'S TROUBLES GONE

Terrible Cramps, Dizzy Spells Nervousness, Misery—Her Story of How She Got Well Again.

Hindsboro, Ill.—"Your remedies have relieved me of all my troubles. I would have such bearing down misery and cramps and such weak, nervous, dizzy spells that I would have to go to bed. Some days I could hardly stay up long enough to get a meal."

"The doctor's medicine did me no good so I changed to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and got good results from the first bottle. I kept on taking it and used the Sanative Wash with it, until I was well again. I think every woman who suffers as I have, could take no better medicine."—Mrs. CHARLES MATTISON, Box 58, Hindsboro, Ill.

Testimony of Trained Nurse.

Cathlamet, Wash.—"I am a nurse and when I do much lifting I have a female weakness, but I take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I cannot say enough in praise of it. I always recommend it for female troubles."—Mrs. ELVA BARBER EDWARDS, Box 54, Cathlamet, Wash.

The makers of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound have thousands of such letters as those above—they tell the truth, else they could not have been obtained for love or money. This medicine is no stranger—it has stood the test for years.

It wouldn't be in accordance with the nature of the society to give anything so frivolous and flimsy as bonnets, but I'll mention it if I can get a chance before Electa comes."

"I'll do more than that," declared Amabel enthusiastically. "I'll corner each one when they're taking off their things in the bedroom and ask them to think it over. I've made up my mind that Electa Scott is going to have a new Easter bonnet if I have to give her my new hat and wear my old one—so there!"

Mrs. Deering smiled at her daughter's ardor, and she hoped that there would be no test of Amabel's generosity in the matter of new hats. The Deerings were very well to do and, like many other people in the prosperous farming community, had plenty of clothes for the season, and she could hardly understand how Electa Scott could make such a matter of importance of a new bonnet as to carry it to the Lord in prayer. In fact, Mrs. Deering felt rather shocked about it.

It proved that the other members of the missionary society felt the same way about it. No matter how badly Electa Scott might want an Easter bonnet, and they all admitted that hers was wretchedly shabby, it scarcely seemed delicate to mention such a trivial matter to the Lord.

"Well," cried the exasperated Amabel at last, "if you won't do anything, please remember that I've told you about this in the strictest secrecy, and if it ever leaks outside it will come from one of the members of this society. I'll see that Electa Scott has an Easter bonnet. My last year's straw is perfectly good."

"That's generous of Amabel considering how fond she is of clothes," murmured Mrs. James Harmon, whose son was "keeping company" with Amabel Deering.

Amabel reddened and went to answer the doorbell, for it fortunately happened that Electa was the last to arrive, and as she admitted her the girl noticed that the thin little spinster was aglow with excitement.

"Ladies," she cried as soon as she had seated herself to her task of sewing. "I've got great news! I've just been down to Ellen Lawson's. You all know she's been flat on her back for a year with rheumatism, and I declare if she ain't walking around! She is too! She says she's going to church Easter Sunday."

"That's very nice," murmured the members of the missionary society, somewhat chagrined to find that this active member of their circle had been doing some home missionary work unknown to them. But it had been a busy winter, with special work for their mission school in India, and Ellen Lawson lived on the other side of the river.

"She's grown so thin, being sick and all, that she ain't got a thing to wear to church, and I promised she could wear my black silk dress. I tell you because I knew you'd all recognize it by the trimming. You've seen it often enough, but I don't want Ellen to think any one'd notice it. She's counting on going to church and seeing the flowers and hearing a sermon. All the church news she's had is what her husband could bring home, and men folks ain't much for that kind of thing," rattled Electa. "What about this sleeve, Mrs. Deering—is that right?"

Electa was the last one to leave the meeting that day, but it was noticeable that the members of the society were quite distraught as they separated. Electa carried home her doughnuts and had them for her supper. But she was so excited over the prospect of preparing Ellen Lawson for church that she quite forgot to include in her prayers her nightly plea for an Easter bonnet.

Ellen Lawson's appearance at church on Sunday in Electa's one silk dress was a matter that must be managed with tact, so that no chance word or look should mar Ellen's happiness at being out once more.

"That's what Easter's for, I guess—to make glad all the folks who have been sick and are restored to health," mused Electa as she inspected the silk dress for possible spots or tears. It was an ancient gown and well worn.

On the day before Easter Electa Scott walked across the long bridge over the river to Ellen Lawson's house. In her arms she carried a package containing the silk dress.

She had given no further thought to what she might wear herself on the morrow, but there was always the old black cashmere that she reserved for rainy days.

It was dusk when she reached home. As was her custom, she hurried around to the side door to let herself into the house. As she reached the top step she stumbled over something wrapped in paper—paper that rustled crisply. There was more rustling of papers. There proved to be quite a small mountain of paper wrapped parcels against the door.

The mystified little spinster stepped over them and unlocked the door and lighted a lamp. In a daze of surprise she carried in parcel after parcel until they covered her dining room table.

With trembling fingers she opened one of the bags. It contained a dainty little black straw bonnet with bunches of delicate white and purple violets. Another one contained a hat—frill straw with a sweeping black ostrich feather. Electa did not know that this was Amabel's Easter hat. In fact, she never really knew whence came all the lovely hats and bonnets contained in the six bags left at her door, and she never questioned the donors, so happy was she in their possession. They were the Easter bonnets of six lean years of poverty.

Tears of happiness ran down her cheeks as she tried them on before the dim old mirror. Two young people were standing in her garden watching her—Rob Harmon and Amabel Deering. His arm was about the girl, and their cheeks were pressed together. Amabel was too happy to care about hats for herself. She told Rob that the other missionary ladies must have suffered a revulsion of feeling and sacrificed their Easter bonnets for Electa. She knew her own mother had sent a foulard silk dress pattern.

On Easter Sunday Electa Scott wore a new Easter bonnet to church, and, although all of the members of the missionary society wore last year's hats, not one there regretted or would have denied the happiness in Electa Scott's face, for in this way had the Lord answered her prayer for a new bonnet.

THE NAME OF EASTER.

It Is Derived From the Saxon Goddess Ostera.

The name Easter is variously accounted for, but the most natural and probable meaning is that derived from the Saxon Oster, which signifies to rise. But it is known that the old Teutons had a goddess that they called Ostera or Eostre and that she had a festival just about this time of year. The words Paques, Pasch, Paschen, Panske and Pask, as the holiday is known among the French, Scotch, Dutch, Danes and Swedes, are derived from the Hebrew Pash, or the season when the paschal lamb was sacrificed.

Rationalists claim that Christ's death was an allegory that had grown out of this paschal observance and that as the lamb took away the sins of the people so Christ represented a similar vicarious atonement. They hold this view partly because of the claim that in the old Hindu myths the history of Christ is foretold. Krishna, the incarnation of deity, having been born in a lowly place, crowned with light, anointed with oil by a humiliated woman, endowed with the power of healing the sick, either shot or crucified, sent into hell and lifted to heaven. A temple erected to him at Mathura has the form of a cross, and he is painted as crucified, crowned, with holes in his hands and sides.

Holders of these views identifying Christ with Krishna and with the sun gods of the east are coming around to the Christian belief, however, in so far as to acknowledge that there was an actual Christ; that he was a brave and powerful reformer, a man of eloquence and high ideals, a magnetic healer, and that he came to his death either because reformers are generally unpopular with their own generation or as a sacrifice, the Jews in their earlier worship having offered living sacrifices on the cross to the sun god. The halo, still represented in the monkish tonsure, is held to stand for the rays of the sun.

Whatever be the beliefs as to the personality of the central figure in the tragedy that is commemorated at this season, there is no doubt that some of the Easter observances had their origin far back before the Christian era. Ostera, the Saxon goddess, was but a descendant from the Egyptian Isis, and the coming of spring was always celebrated with rejoicings. The sun of Easter was the sun that arose from its grave of winter and ascended toward the zenith once more, bringing life and brightening all nature in its course.

LAWYERS OPPOSE THE ROOSEVELT DOCTRINE

Recall of Judges Is Not to Their Liking

New York, April 5.—Persons interested in the Independent Judiciary association, which is being organized by Joseph H. Choate, General B. F. Tracy, William B. Hornblower, John G. Milburn, Senator Root and other distinguished lawyers to combat the doctrine of the recall of judges and of judicial decisions, are inclined to think that the new association, non-partisan as it is, will interest itself strongly in the re-election of President Taft. There is an impression that the Taft campaign will be the gainer by a number of extremely competent speakers.

All of the twenty-five lawyers who signed the appeal to the members of the bar are opposed to the course taken by Colonel Roosevelt. It was pointed out, and are in direct accord with Mr. Taft. It is likely that the association will delegate members to make public addresses which will attack Colonel Roosevelt's ideas and which will support Mr. Taft's. The association has not progressed far enough, it was said, to consider what its attitude would be toward a Democratic nominee for the presidency in opposition to the recall of judges and judicial decisions, but as things now stand the association is strongly behind Mr. Taft.

It Was Self-Defense.

Centralia, Ill., April 5.—George Wingler, the deputy marshal who shot and killed Charles Brod and Henry Grose at Odin, was exonerated by Coroner Foster on the ground that he had fired in self-defense.

The followers of the former shah of Persia, who were attacked by Russian troops and took refuge in a mosque at Meshid, surrendered after thirty-nine of their number had been killed and twenty-six wounded.

MRS. MCGILL BROKE DOWN

Gives the Real Facts In Regard to Her Case and Tells How She Suffered.

Jonesboro, Ark.—"I suffered a complete break down in health, some time ago," writes Mrs. A. McGill, from this place. "I was very weak and could not do any work. I tried different remedies, but they did me no good. One day, I got a bottle of Cardui. It did me so much good, I was surprised, and took some more."

Before I took Cardui, I had headache and backache, and sometimes I would cry for hours. Now I am over all that, and can do all kinds of housework. I think it is the greatest medicine on earth."

In the past fifty years, thousands of ladies have written, like Mrs. McGill, to tell of the benefit received from Cardui.

Such testimony, from earnest women, surely indicates the great value of this tonic remedy, for diseases peculiar to women. Are you a sufferer? Yes? Cardui is the medicine you need. We urge you to try it.

WOMEN CONFESS FORGING A WILL

Entered Pleas of Guilty In Grant Circuit Court.

THEIR IGNORANCE OF THE LAW

This Is Cited by Their Attorney in Extension of the Act of Mrs. Hossbauer and Mrs. Rickard, Who, Hoping, It Is Said, to Cut a Sister Out of Her Share of Deceased Aunt's Estate, Fixed Up a Will to Suit Themselves.

Marion, Ind., April 5.—Through their attorney Viola Hossbauer and Alice Rickard, both of Indianapolis, entered pleas of guilty in the Grant circuit court to the charge of forgery and uttering a forged will. The women were not in court, and until they can be present and make a statement no sentence will be pronounced. By agreement further proceedings were continued until the next term of court.

The pleas of the women were made in a confession that the will alleged to have been that of their aunt, Mrs. Miriam Miller of Point Isabel, Grant county, is a forgery. Mrs. Miller died Dec. 13, 1911. By the terms of the forged will, Mrs. Hossbauer and Mrs. Rickard were to get all the property owned by Mrs. Miller, valued at $10,000, and a sister, Marjan Gerhardt, also of Indianapolis, was to receive nothing. The name of May Hacker of Grant county, was signed to this will as a witness, and she now has pending in the Marion county courts suit against Mrs. Hossbauer and Mrs. Rickard for $5,000 damages for alleged fraudulent use of her name. The attorney for the two women said that the acts of his two clients came, doubtless, on account of personal differences between the sisters and their ignorance of the law.

URGED TO ACT

County Chairmen Called on to Insure Full Registration.

Indianapolis, April 5.—There is considerable activity around both the Republican and Democratic state committee headquarters in preparation for the registration of voters. The first registration day will be May 9, the second Sept. 6, and the third Oct. 5. The fact that the registration law is a new thing in Indiana and that it will be tried out this year for the first time, is causing the organization officers of both parties to take special pains to see that everything starts off right.

The chairmen of both the state committees have sent letters to all county chairmen urging them to use strong efforts to register every voter in their counties. The county chairmen in each county are asked to notify the precinct committeemen and to see to it that the latter get the voters to the registration place. The importance of this is pointed out, because unless a voter is registered he will have no legal right to vote at the fall election.

Demands $20,000 Damages.

Logansport, Ind., April 5.—Frank Vance has filed suit for $20,000 against the Indiana Lighting company for the death of his wife and son, which occurred Feb. 15 last. Gas from broken street mains got into the Vance home through old service pipes and asphyxiated the mother and son. Nearly two dozen other families in the same vicinity were overcome by gas at the same time.

Trouble Reported in Tibet.

Gyangtse, Tibet, April 5.—The Chinese have proclaimed a republic at Lhasa and established a council on the lines of the provincial assemblies in China. The officials have cut off their queues and are wearing western clothes. The Tibetans have rebelled against the new order and there has been much fighting near Shigatse.

OPERATORS RESIST RECOGNITION POINT

Will Not Contract With Miners as a Union.

Mahanoy City, Pa., April 4.—There surely will be a strike in the anthracite region if the United Mine Workers insist upon recognition of the union. This is the substance of a statement by a company official. Recognition in any shape or form will not be considered by the operators. The operators point to the fact that the strike commission in 1902 declared that the operators should not recognize the mine workers by entering into a contract with them. The ruling on the point was as follows:

"The present constitution of the United Mine Workers of America does not present the most inviting inducements to the operators to enter into contract relations with it."

The constitution of the mine workers has not been changed since that time. Throughout the southern anthracite region the sentiment among the mine workers is that if the operators grant them an advance in wages and renew the commission's award for three years, it will be all they can expect. Moreover, the officials of the mine workers are now at work endeavoring to impress upon the men that they should stand for recognition of the union and the check system, which would mean the collection of union dues by the coal companies.

HOME RULE BILL IS READY FOR ACTION

Will Be Introduced In Parliament April 11.

London, April 5.—The home rule or Irish government bill, as it will be known officially, a draft of which has been completed, will be introduced on April 11. The differences between the ministry and the Irish Nationalists over the revenues to be raised have resulted in a compromise by which the customs excise will be collected by the imperial government, but the Irish parliament may vary these duties subject to the veto of the imperial parliament.

Under the provisions of the bill the Irish parliament is denied the right to impose a duty on British goods. Ireland will not contribute to the imperial revenues for a certain number of years.

It is understood that the Irish representation in the British parliament will be reduced to about forty. Part of the membership of the Irish senate will be nominated by the crown.

Help For Beleaguered City.

Jimenez, Mexico, April 5.—Defeated in his attack upon Parral, General Emilio Campa retreated to the Liberal base here, leaving only a small force near Parral, and these are now being driven back. General Tellez's federal command from Torreón reached the beleaguered city before the rebel command could attack, and this brought the strength of the defending garrison up to nearly 2,000. They beat the rebels back with ease.

This simple discovery banishes uric acid from the blood, loosens the stiffened joints, purifies the blood, and brightens the eyes, giving elasticity and tone to the whole system. ## CHAPTER III.

In Darkest Chicago.

The castaways from the wrecked taxicab hurried along the doleful street. Both of them knew their Chicago, but this part of it was not their Chicago.

They hailed a pedestrian, to ask where the nearest street car line might be, and whither it might run. He answered indistinctly from a discreet distance, as he hastened away. Perhaps he thought their question merely a footpad's introduction to a sandbagging episode. In Chicago at night one never knows.

"As near as I can make out what he said, Marjorie, the lieutenant pondered aloud, "we walk straight ahead till we come to Umptyump street, and there we find a Rarara car that will take us to Bloptyplop avenue. I never heard of any such streets, did you?"

"Never," she panted, as she jog-trotted alongside his military pace. "Let's take the first car we meet, and perhaps the conductor can put us off at the street where the minister lives."

"Perhaps." There was not much confidence in that "perhaps."

When they reached the street-carred street, they found two tracks, but nothing occupying them, as far as they could peer either way. A small shopkeeper in a tiny shop proved to be a delicatessen merchant so busily selling foreign horrors to aliens, that they learned nothing from him.

At length, in the far-away, they made out a headlight, and heard the grind and squeal of a car. Lieutenant Mallory waited for it, watch in hand. He boosted Marjorie's elbow aboard and bombarded the conductor with questions. But the conductor had no more heard of their street than they had of his. Their agitation did not disturb his stoic calm, but he invited them to come along to the next crossing, where they could find another car and more learned conductors; or, what promised better, perhaps a cab. He threw Marjorie into a panic by ordering her to jettison Snoozleums, but the lieutenant bought his soul for a small price, and overlooked the fact that he did not ring up their fares.

The young couple squeezed into a seat and talked anxiously in sharp whispers.

"Wouldn't it be terrible, Harry, if, just as we got to the minister's, we should find papa there ahead of us, waiting to forbid the bands, or whatever it is? Wouldn't it be just terrible?"

"Yes, it would, honey, but it doesn't seem probable. There are thousands of ministers in Chicago. He could never find ours. Fact is, I doubt if we find him ourselves."

Her clutch tightened till he would have winced, if he had not been a soldier.

"What do you mean, Harry?"

"Well, in the first place, honey, look what time it is. Hardly more than time to get the train, to say nothing of hunting for that preacher and standing up through a long rigmarole."

"Why, Harry Mallory, are you getting ready to jilt me?"

"Indeed I'm not—not for worlds, honey, but I've got to get that train, haven't I?"

"Couldn't you wait over one train—just one tiny little train?"

"My own, own honey love, you know it's impossible! You must remember that I've already waited over three trains while you tried to make up your mind."

"And you must remember, darling, that it's no easy matter for a girl to decide to sneak away from home and be married secretly, and go all the way out to that hideous Manila with no trousseau and no wedding presents and no anything."

"I know it isn't, and I waited patiently while you got up the courage. But now there are no more trains. I shudder to think of this train being late. We're not due in San Francisco till Thursday evening, and my transport sails at sunrise Friday morning. Oh, Lord, what if I should miss that transport! What if I should!"

"What if we should miss the minister?"

"It begins to look a great deal like it."

"But, Harry, you wouldn't desert me now—abandon me to my fate?"

"Well, it isn't exactly like abandonment, seeing that you could go home to your father and mother in a taxicab."

She stared at him in horror.

"So you don't want me for your wife! You've changed your mind! You're tired of me already! Only an hour together, and you're sick of your bargain! You're anxious to get rid of me! You—"

"Oh, honey, I want you more than anything else on earth, but I'm a soldier, and I have to go. I'll take a soldier's share of your love, and I'll be back in a week."

the regular army, and I'm the slave of the government. I've gone through West Point, and they won't let me resign respectfully and if I did, we'd starve. They wouldn't accept my resignation, but they'd be willing to court-martial me and dismiss me from the service in disgrace. Then you wouldn't want to marry me—and I shouldn't have any way of supporting you if you did. I only know one trade, and that's soldiering."

"Don't call it a trade, beloved, it's the noblest profession in all the world, and you're the noblest soldier that ever was, and in a year or two you'll be the biggest general in the army."

He could not afford to shatter such a devout illusion or quench the light of faith in those beloved and loving eyes. He tacitly admitted his ability to be promoted commander-in-chief in a year or two. He allowed that glittering possibility to remain, used it as a basis for argument.

"Then, dearest, you must help me to do my duty."

She clasped his upper arm as if it were an altar and she an Iphigenia about to be sacrificed to save the army. And she murmured with utter heroism:

"I will! Do what you like with me!"

He squeezed her hand between his biceps and his ribs and accepted the offering in a look drenched with gratitude. Then he said, matter-of-factly:

"We'll see how much time we have when we get to—whatever the name of that street is."

The car jolted and wailed on its way like an old drifting rocking chair. The motorman was in no hurry. The passengers seemed to have no occasion for haste. Somebody got on or got off at almost every corner, and paused for conversation while the car waited patiently. But eventually the conductor put his head in and drawled:

"Hay! Here's where you get off at."

They hastened to debark and found themselves in a narrow, gaudily-lighted region where they saw a lordly transfer-distributor, a profound scholar in Chicago streets. He informed them that the minister's street lay far back along the path they had come; they should have taken a car in the opposite direction, transferred at some remote center, descended at some unheard-of street, walked three blocks one way and four another, and there they would have been.

Mallory looked at his watch, and Marjorie's hopes dropped like a wrecked aeroplane, for he grimly asked how long it would take them to reach the railroad station.

"Well, you'd ought to make it in forty minutes," the transfer agent said—and added, cynically, "if the car makes schedule."

"Good Lord, the train starts in twenty minutes!"

"Well, I tell you—take this here green car to Wexford avenue—there's usually a taxicab or two standing there."

"Thank you. Hop on, Marjorie."

Marjorie hopped on, and they sat down, Mallory with eyes and thoughts on nothing but the watch he kept in his hand.

During this tense journey the girl perfected her soul with graceful martyrdom.

"I'll go to the train with you, Harry, and then you can send me home in a taxicab."

Her nether lip trembled and her eyes were filmed, but they were brave, and her voice was so tender that it wooed his mind from his watch. He gazed at her, and found her so dear, so devoted and so pitifully exquisite, that he was almost overcome by an impulse to gather her into his arms there and then, indifferent to the immediate passengers or to his far-off military superiors. An hour ago they were young lovers in all the lilt and thrill of elopement. She had clung to him in the gloaming of their taxicab, as it sped like a gnat at their whim to the place where the minister would unite their hands and raise his own in blessing. Thence the new husband would have carried the new wife away, his very own, soft and body, duty and beauty. Then, ah, then in their minds the future was an unwaning honeymoon, the journey across the continent, a stroll along a lover's lane, the Pacific ocean a garden lake, and the Philippines a chain of Fortunate Isles decreed especially for their Eden. And then the taxicab encountered a lamppost. They thought they had merely wrecked a motor car—and lo, they had wrecked a Paradise.

The railroad ceased to be a lover's lane and became a lingering torment; the ocean was a weeping Sahara, and the Philippines a Dry Tortugas of exile.

Mallory realized for the first time anything else on earth, but I'm a soldier, and I have to go. I'll take a soldier's share of your love, and I'll be back in a week."

mal life of restrictions and hardships an officer's life is bound to be. It was hard to obey the soulless machinery of discipline, to be a brass-buttoned slave. He felt all the hot, quick resentment that turns a faithful soldier into a deserter. But it takes time to evolve a deserter, and Mallory had only twenty minutes. The handcuffs and legions of discipline hobbled him. He was only a little cog in a great clock, and the other wheels were impinging on him and revolving in spite of himself.

In the close-packed seats where they were jostled and stared at, the soldier could not even attempt to explain to his fascinated bride the war of motives in his breast. He could not voice the passionate rebellion her beauty had whipped up in his soul. Perhaps if Romeo and Juliet had been forced to say farewell on a Chicago street car instead of a Veronese balcony, their language would have lacked savor, too.

Perhaps young Mr. Montague and young Miss Capulet, instead of waiting, "No, that is not the lark whose notes do beat the vaulted heaven so high above our heads," would have done no better than Mr. Mallory and Miss Newton. In any case, the best these two could squeeze out was:

"It's just too bad, honey."

"But I guess it can't be helped, dear."

"It's a mean old world, isn't it?"

"Awful!"

And then they must pile out into the street again so lost in woe that they did not know how they were trampled or elbowed. Marjorie's despair was so complete that it paralyzed instinct. She forgot Snoozleums! A thoughtful passenger ran out and tossed the basket into Mallory's arms even as the car moved off.

Fortune relented a moment and they found a taxicab waiting where they had expected to find it. Once more they were cosy in the flying twilight, but their grief was their only baggage, and the clasp of their hands talked all the talk there was.

Anxiety within anxiety tormented them and they feared another wreck. But as they swooped down upon the station, a kind-faced tower clock beamed the reassurance that they had three minutes to spare.

The taxicab drew up and halted, but they did not get out. They were kissing good-byes, fervidly and numerously, while a grinning station-porter winked at the winking chauffeur.

Marjorie simply could not have done with farewells.

"I'll go to the gate with you," she said.

He told the chauffeur to wait and take the young lady home. The lieutenant looked so honest and the girl so sad that the chauffeur simply touched his cap, though it was not his custom to allow strange fares to vanish into crowded stations, leaving behind nothing more negotiable than instructions to wait.

AN EMPIRE WRAPPER.

The Empire style is always becoming to the uncorrected figure and a wrapper such as the one illustrated will undoubtedly be worn most often under these conditions than when a woman is desirous of appearing dressed. The waist is cut on the peasant lines with the sleeves in one piece with it. The seam in the center of the back makes the design possible for even narrow materials. The neck is trimmed by a contrasting material and this is the only ornamentation of which the gown is capable. Printed crepe, silk, challis and cashmere of various shades are all materials suitable for a wrapper of this character. The pattern (5274) is cut in sizes 32 to 44 inches bust measure. Medium size requires 6 3/4 yards of 36 inch material.

To procure this pattern send 10 cents to "Pattern Department," of this paper. Write name and address plainly, and be sure to give size and number of pattern.

Repudiated.

Milwaukee's message to the country today is that it has had enough of socialism in its municipal business.

The strongly anti-socialistic ticket headed by those bitter and uncompromising assailants of socialism, Bading, Carney and Kotecki, carried the election by heavy pluralities.

The nonpartisan platform bluntly declared that anti-socialism vs. socialism was the "paramount issue." The issue was sharpened by the selection of such militant and uncompromising anti-socialists as Bading and Carney to head the ticket.

The nonpartisan committee determined to force that issue to the fore, and to drum into the mind of the electorate that such was the issue. The result of the voting yesterday signally and splendidly vindicates their political judgment.

A dual end has been gained: The socialists have been swept out of power; the magnitude of the anti-socialist vote demonstrates to the country that Milwaukee is not and never has been a socialist city, and therefore a city for capital and industrial enterprise to fight shy of.

For since socialism is frankly and essentially anti-capitalistic, capital may very reasonably presume that it will not at a pinch get a square deal in a socialist city.

This election removes that most regarding presumption from the city of Milwaukee.

For the country at large, here is the rationale of the general situation in a nutshell:

Two years ago the socialists were elected on the strength of their promises; this spring they are overwhelmingly defeated on the weakness of their performances.

The voters had to pass judgment this year on the actual record of a socialist administration. The magnitude of the vote that turned the socialists out of office is the measure of the people's impression of their failure in office.

To the men who fought and won this campaign, and especially to those doughty platform fighters, Mayor-elect Bading and Treasurer-elect Carney, our hearty congratulations and best wishes.

The nonpartisan candidates have won a splendid victory; the city looks to them to use it wisely, fairly, and in a spirit showing that their non-partisanship was no mere campaign label to be thrown aside the moment it had done duty in attracting votes.

They are handicapped by no extravagant promises. They have promised only what an honest and efficient business administration can perform. To that much the public will hold them to a strict accounting. The Sentinel believes they will not be found wanting when weighed in the balance two years hence.—Milwaukee Sentinel.

Fifty Years Ago Today.

April 6.

First day of the battle of Shiloh, Tenn. The Federal army under General U. S. Grant and Confederates under General A. S. Johnston contended from daylight till dark. The Federals were driven back two miles to the cover of gunboats on Tennessee river and a battery of heavy guns on the bank. General Johnston was killed. The opposing forces were about equal—40,000 on each side. At nightfall Grant was re-enforced by Nelson's division of General D. C. Buell's army, 5,000 strong.

OLD-TIME REMEDY DARKENS THE HAIR

Gives Color, Lustre to Faded and Gray Hair—Dandruff Quickly Removed.

From time immemorial, sage and sulphur have been used for the hair and scalp. Almost everyone knows of the value of such a combination for darkening the hair, for curing dandruff and falling hair, and for making the hair grow.

In olden times the only way to get a hair tonic of this sort was to brew it in the home fireplace, a method which was troublesome and not always satisfactory. Nowadays almost every up-to-date druggist can supply his patrons with a ready-to-use product, skillfully compounded in perfectly equipped laboratories. The Wyeth Chemical Company of New York put up an ideal remedy of this sort, called Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy, and authorize druggists to sell it under guarantee that the money will be refunded if it fails to do exactly as represented.

If you have dandruff, or if your hair is turning gray or coming out, don't delay, but get a bottle of this remedy to-day, and see what a few days' treatment will do for you.

This preparation is offered to the public at fifty cents a bottle, and is recommended and sold by all druggists. Special Agents, Andrews Drug Co.
